

Students at Plum

Our midwives are preceptors for the Midwifery program at UBC, and on occasion we will have UBC Student Midwives, NIC Nursing students or UBC Medical Residents working within our practice. Their participation in our practice can offer an enriched experience for the students and our clients.

Students coming from UBC are mostly in their third and fourth years (last year), and come to our clinic bursting with enthusiasm, the latest research information on many topics, and we can offer them the opportunity for practical in-clinic, home or hospital experience. For continuity, student midwives will be present at most prenatal visits, labours, births and postpartum visits. We hope you will welcome a student into your care to help provide this opportunity for the growth of midwifery in our province.

Please let us know at any time if this choice is not for you. We also welcome any feedback.
